To watch a loved one die in agony after being a hard- working man all of their life is devastating, it leaves behind tears that will last forever x

Steve E.

Dad died from this horribly cruel disease. Typically cynical move by the Coalition Government to defend the insurers and the corrupt companies who have exposed millions to this pernicious substance and then step away from their responsibility I urge everyone who logs onto this site to sign the petition

I lost my dearly loved Dad to this terrible illness at 67 years of age - he worked on building sites for most of his working life and was taken from us too early.

Deidre B.

My husband suffered greatly with mesothelioma

Peter T.

I have mesothelioma, nuff said.

esther o.

My husband had mesothelioma...this Bill is not fair !!!!

Claire M.

Because I saw an old family friend die from this disease, the insurance company hasn't been traced and I think that provisions should be made for the family

Robert S.

I was diagnosed with Mesothelioma in January 2012 and I would love to be able to provide some security for my loved ones

Matthew B.

Contracting this disease is horrifying in any circumstances. Being unable to provide security for your loved ones only adds to the misery in the painful last months.

Lisa G.

The government needs to take responsibility for this with no half measures. My Dad passed away this week from this and somebody has blood on their hands.

JOHN R.

BECAUSE I HAVE BEEN SUBJECTED TO IT

My friend John Thornhill was a keen cyclist and a long distance runner and wasted away over three years with this terrible disease in 2008. We remember him daily and we shouldn't have to because he should be still here.

Having lost an Uncle and a very close friend recently to this dreadful disease I have seen closely how they suffered. Both families were left devastated and I personally have lost two wonderful people in my life. This should never have happened.
